They rejoice "to find a woman presiding at a promiscuous meeting-truly this reform is working along though the pastors rage ..." The writer refers to a barn in Pepperell which "will be clasic ground in 50 years time." The writer regrets that her and her sister's lectures were not advertised under the names of both. The writer never received a box which was supposed to have been sent to her. Has read the chapters in The English in India, by W. Howitt. "Look not only at India, but look at the World. Have we not always robbed the ignorant & the defenseless of whatever we wanted." Praises a prospectus issued by the British India Society. Does not fear that the India Society will adversely affect "the cause of Emancipation in the West Indies ... We were very glad to see that the subject of free products was again agitated in England ..." [illegible]ets that Garrison abandoned the idea. «Belleville, New Jersey» Hopes that "some providence" will prevent England from going to war with China. Is not as enthusiastic about American Abolitionists as Harriet Martineau. Thinks that there are a few people in every Quaker meeting who control the consciences of those present. "I do rejoice that William Bassett has been strengthened to plead the cause of the oppressed..." Criticised the Society of Friends in a document to be sent to the World's Anti-Slavery Convention. A letter from J. Sturge has been published in the Emancipator, "in which he mentions that a report has reached England that women will be sent as delegates ..." S. M. G. disapproves of the idea. Lucreti[illegible]tt is the only woman she knows

[Philadelphia] Says that she has been living a retired life since Angelina Grimké's marriage, and therefore knows little of the recent doings of the Abolitionists. "Elizabeth Stanton wrote us word that John Scoble said we had changed our views on the subject of women's rights ..." Denies this. Gives news of T. D. Weld's family. Talks at length about little Charles S. Weld. Discusses the World's Anti-Slavery Convention. Regrets that the woman question was introduced. Asserts that the female delegates should have been admitted. Questioned certain statements made in a letter published in the Emancipator. Doubts if the Quakers have changed their views. <Fort Lee, N.Y.> Doubts if she would have signed the Declaration of Sentiments and the Constitution at the Peace Convention, because she felt she needed "a fuller insight into the mysteries of Gods Kingdom ..." Has tried in vain to reconcile the Mosaic and Christian dispensations in the Bible. Was much interested in Caroline Fry's Christ Our Example. Has never discussed the Bible with T. D. Weld. [Brookline, Mass.] The writer tells about the health of Angelina Emily Grimké. "She has been reduced to great weakness by the fever, but that is now entirely subdued." They do not contemplate being withdrawn from the Anti-Slavery cause, even though they cannot lecture this winter. The writer feels that her vital energies are greatly taxed by speaking and her throat is frequently sore. Hopes that Angelina will be allowed by her friends to recover entirely before she is asked to lecture again. The writer and her sister hope to be excused from writing "in the Album," for they "feel an objection to writing in a book that [illegible]o be sold." The writer has mourned "that brother [El[illegible]P.] Lovejoy died in the transgression of Christ's comma[illegible] 'Resist not evil' ... I can see «Brookline, (Mass.)» The editor of the New England Spectator wants to revise an article sent to him by the Grimkés. Other writings of the Grimké sisters include Angelina's Appeal to the Women of the Nominally Free States (1837), Letters to Catherine E. Beecher in Reply to an Essay on Slavery ...(1838) and Sarah's Letters on the Equality of the Sexes and the Condition of Woman (1838).
